Law Enforcement Report. Major Jamey Schwab reported no major incidents in the past month but noted a spike in thefts from autos in adjacent neighborhoods. Additional patrol officers have been assigned to the neighborhood. The vacant house on Shallcross, which recently experienced a break-in, remains on the extra patrol list. Mr. Schwab will follow up with the detective and check on the property again.

Flock Cameras. Commissioner Bird reported that upgraded Flock cameras have been installed at the Glen Hill entrance. Resident feedback, including on privacy concerns, has been positive so far. The council discussed the system's effectiveness and cost, with mixed opinions on its value, and considered alternatives such as updated signage to deter crime. Commissioner Bird will verify the contract's renewal date and notification period, and the council will make a final decision on renewing the Flock contract by September. Commissioner Wilson will develop wording options for a new neighborhood patrol sign.

Nuisance and Code Enforcement Ordinances. Attorney David Spenard presented, as a first reading, three draft ordinances: (1) a nuisance ordinance establishing a nuisance abatement process; (2) an ordinance creating a Code Enforcement Board; and (3) an ordinance creating a Code Enforcement Officer position. Mr. Spenard explained that an ordinance-based approach provides more enforcement flexibility and is more cost-effective than relying on common law remedies. Mr. Spenard clarified that the code enforcement positions could be voluntary, with the option to compensate them later, and that the language could be revised to preserve that flexibility. Mayor Green reported that at least three residents have expressed interest in serving on the Code Enforcement Board. Commissioner Beaulieu expressed support but requested more time to review the details.

The council discussed posting the draft ordinances on the city website and distributing a notice to residents' mailboxes for public review before taking further action.

Landscaping. The council reviewed the condition of the landscape islands and agreed to replace two dead arborvitae and two dead boxwoods and to treat the two blue spruce trees, while postponing any major redesign. Commissioner Beaulieu will coordinate the replacements and work on design options for future landscape islands. He will also coordinate with Commissioner Bird on maintenance of the common area around the MSD drain. Mayor Green will compile and respond to resident requests for the Trees Louisville program.

Finance and Paving. The council discussed financial planning, paving projects, and the potential investment of city funds.

Other Business. Mayor Green will work with Attorney Spenard to draft a letter to the second property owner affected by the street closure municipal order. Clerk Schmitt and Mayor Green will schedule time to update the resident directory and address the storage unit once school is back in session.
